Newsletter Summaries

Bradford Tax Institute

Webinar reminder for today's live session, "Make Every Client's S Corporation a Tax-Saving Machine," presented by Bradley Burnett, J.D., LL.M., today (Thu Aug 6) at 2:00 PM EDT. The pitch opens with a cautionary tale: a preparer was hit with $130,000 in penalties over a client-set salary he never touched, and settled for $34,500. With the One Big Beautiful Bill Act (OBBBA) now permanent for 2026+, the session covers setting defensible S-corp salaries using the valuation methods from McAlary, Herbert, Ward, and Blossom Day Care; capturing the now-permanent, wider Section 199A deduction (phaseout widened to $150K MFJ / $75K, new $400 minimum deduction); balancing salary against employment tax, 199A, and the 3.8% NIIT; reconstructing shareholder basis via Cohan estimates; and PTET payment strategy. Example cited: a $400K-earnings client saves roughly $16,750/year (S-corp vs. sole prop), or $167,500+ over ten years.

Checkpoint / Thomson Reuters

No new Checkpoint edition arrived in the last 24 hours. The most recent "Five-Minute Tax Briefing" (Aug 11 preview, No. 2026-15) was received and already read on Aug 5 and is not repeated here.

Accounting Today

IRS Watch digest (Aug 5). Lead story: the IRS quietly restructured how it oversees every credentialed tax professional in the country via a new Tax Professional Management Office — most practitioners were caught off guard. Also covered: the IRS's improper-payment rate on refundable tax credits jumped from 21.9% (2024) to 26.5% (2025), about $28.1 billion; the IRS cut multilingual support from 20 languages to seven following a Trump executive order; IRS Criminal Investigation issued a fraud alert on fake IRS letters targeting cryptocurrency holders; and the recurring Tax Fraud Blotter column highlighted several recent tax-crime cases.

CPA Trendlines

The Fineberg Review, "The Value of Vulnerability" (Aug 5). Seth Fineberg reflects on the Bridging the Gap conference, arguing that openness and peer sharing within the profession is a professional asset, not a weakness. Also featured: an interview with Todd Gray, CPA (founder/CEO of ValueInsights.AI) on how AI is reshaping tax planning and enabling smarter charitable-donation valuations; and the launch of RepWorks by Tax Rep Network, a new workflow platform built specifically for practitioners doing IRS representation work.

Other Important Emails

- Security alert: a new device signed in to your AIAdvantage account (Aug 5, 4:18 PM ET) — worth a quick check if you don't recognize the device.
